CFC offers relief for displaced OFWs

The Couples for Christ (CFC), one of the world's largest family-oriented groups, has found their own way to help overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) displaced by the coronavirus pandemic.

The CFC launched on Sept. 25 the "Tawid OFW Program" to assist repatriated OFWs through its "Adopt an OFW Family" initiative in coordination with the bishops' Episcopal Commission for the Pastoral Care of Migrants and Itinerant People.

Bro. Jess Ferrer, CFC Migrants Program head, said the goal is to help the recipients generate income and reintegrate them with their families and communities.

"The program aims to shorten their dependency on dole-outs and to reintegrate the family into the society equipped with livelihood skills," Ferrer said.

Aside from helping address the OFW's daily sustenance, the initiative will also require their families to join in values formation programs.

There are more than 10 million OFWs deployed all over the world. Due to the pandemic, an estimated 300,000 OFWs have lost their jobs and the figure may reach 500,000 by December.

As of today, close to 200,000 Filipino workers abroad have already been repatriated because of the health crisis.

"The untimely termination of their contract left the OFWs unprepared with little or zero savings," Ferrer said.

Based on a survey conducted by the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas from 2007 to 2018, 97 percent of OFW families still depend on the remittances for their daily food and needs.

The study also showed that only 38% have the ability to set aside some savings and only 6% of OFW households have some form of investment.

"Our 'unsung heroes' are hurting. Now more than ever they need our help," he said.

Scalabrinian Fr. Resty Ogsimer, ECMI executive secretary, lauded the CFC for the "good example that other communities can emulate".

As the church currently celebrates 34th National Migrants Sunday, he encouraged everyone to replicate the effort "that conveys care, compassion, acceptance and welcome" for OFWs in distressful situations.

"Each of us can do something in whatever way possible," he said. source: CBCP News

Center Holds Performance Review and Staff Development

TRECE MARTIRES CITY, Cavite - The Agricultural Training Institute (ATI) in CALABARZON conducted a Performance Review and Assessment on September 28-30, 2020.

The activity served as an avenue to keep track of the physical and financial accomplishments of the Center and monitor the activities of each banner program.

As of September, the Center noted 100% physical accomplishment, as all targeted activities were successfully conducted. The total cash downloaded to the Center was fully utilized as well, with 100% absorption capacity.

As the program focal persons presented their accomplishments, they also shared the challenges they encountered and best practices worth emulating. Among the challenges mentioned were lack of readiness of participants for the new normal in training (use of virtual platforms), as well as poor internet connectivity in their areas.

Meanwhile, some of the best practices include, strong partnership with LGUs and high level of competency of Agricultural Extension Workers (AEWs) in training facilitation. These were very helpful as some of the Center's trainings were implemented by LGU coordinators, with close coordination with the ATI staff through phone calls and video calls and monitoring of trainings through virtual platforms.

ATI CALABARZON's accredited Extension Service Providers (ESP) were also crucial in the accomplishment of the Center's targets. MoCA Family Farm RILearning Center Inc. carried out the "Drip Irrigation Technology Online Training" using LMS (Learning Management System). It was a blended learning methodology with flexible schedule: 30% synchronous (instructor-led) and 70% asynchronous, which allowed participants to work at their own pace. Additionally, Teofely Nature Farms conducted the "Capability-building Workshop for Farm Product Utilization" for LSA (Learning Site for Agriculture) cooperators which centered on food safety management, food costing, food preparation techniques, and various product value-adding techniques.

Following the performance review was the staff development, which focused on health and safety of the staff, in response to the Covid-19 pandemic. Through a Zoom call, Provincial Health Officer of Cavite, Mr. Ralph Laurence Figueroa talked about the Covid-19 guidelines and provided tips on how to keep the Center Covid-free.

Ms. Bernadette Alvarez, Occupational Health and Safety Consultant also shared her experiences in advocating Office Ergonomics which will be beneficial to the work efficiency of the staff.

The three-day activity was held at the ATI CALABARZON Training Hall, with strict implementation of social distancing and use of PPE.

DILG adopts continuous hiring in filling up the 50,000 slots for Contact Tracers

The Department of the Interior and Local Government will do away with deadlines but instead is adopting the continuous hiring system until it has hired at least 50,000 contact tracers as part of its efforts to ramp up contact tracing in the country.

DILG Undersecretary and Spokesperson Jonathan Malaya said that all DILG provincial and city field offices will continue to accept applications until the slots allocated to them have been filled up.

"What's important to us is to fill up the slots and recruit the most number of Contact Tracers as provided in the Bayanihan 2 law so those who meet the deadline will immediately be processed but we will continue to accept applications until we have met our targets," he said.

Malaya said that they intend to have the first batch of DILG-hired contact tracers deployed to the LGU Contact Tracing Teams by first week of October.

He said that some 10,000 individuals have already applied in Metro Manila but many with incomplete documents so they are giving them more time to complete their documents on a first come first served basis. "As soon as they are deemed qualified by the selection board, they will be hired, trained, and deployed to the various LGUs," he added.

He said that contractual personnel whose employment were not renewed, Overseas Filipino Workers whose employment were disrupted, local employees whose service have been recently terminated, and Barangay Health Workers may be given priority in the hiring process if qualified.

To qualify, the applicant must have a Bachelor's degree or college level in an allied medical course or criminology course. Aspirants must also be skilled in data gathering and have assisted in research and documentation; able to interview COVID-19 cases and close contacts in order to gather data; possess the ability to advocate public health education messages; and have investigative capability.

"While our first preference is college graduates or college level of allied medical courses or criminology, we are also open to graduates or college level of any course. So, we urge them to apply and help the country defeat COVID-19," he said.

Malaya said applicants are required to submit an application letter, Personal Data Sheet, National Bureau of Investigation clearance, diploma or transcript of record, and drug test result to the nearest DILG provincial or city field office.

Under the guidelines drafted by the DILG, the contact tracers will earn a minimum of P18,784 per month in a contract of service status. Among their responsibilities are to conduct interviews, profiling, and perform an initial public health risk assessment of COVID-19 cases and their identified close contacts; refer the close contacts to isolation facilities; conduct enhanced contact tracing in collaboration with other agencies and private sectors; conduct daily monitoring of close and general contacts for at least 14 days, and perform such other tasks in relation to the COVID response.

He said that the National Capital Region (NCR) will get 19.2% of the total number of the new contact tracers to be hired for the simple reason that it remains as one of the hot spots of COVID-19. "Mas maraming naitatalang kaso, employees and the passengers will observe the minimum health safety standard protocol especially on the aspects of wearing face masks and face shields and the observation of physical distancing inside the passenger buses," Eleazar said in a statement Tuesday.

Over the weekend, the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board (LTFRB) has allowed the operation of 12 modified provincial bus routes to Metro Manila from Pampanga, Batangas, Laguna and Cavite starting September 30.

The conditions set for the resumption of Metro Manila-bound bus operations include the prohibition on picking up passengers outside of the terminals, no eating, drinking, and talking inside the passenger buses, and prohibition in making and taking cellular phone calls.

Eleazar said the police presence in bus terminals is in line with the order of Philippine National Police (PNP) chief, Gen. Camilo Cascolan for marshaling of public transportation as part of the measures against the Covid-19.

Cascolan earlier said the police marshaling in public transportation is aimed at ensuring that the protocols such as at least one-meter physical distancing, wearing of face masks and face shields and the checking of body temperature are strictly and properly observed.
