Gordon: Proposed Philippine Marshal Service to prevent instances of judges being intimidated from holding trial

PASAY CITY, Jan. 3--Senator Richard J. Gordon, chairman of the committee on Justice and Human Rights, said the proposed Philippine Marshal Service will prevent cases where judges are prevented from holding trial in their assigned salas thru intimidation, which has been happening in some areas in the country.

"There have occasions, for example, and I'm sure both my colleagues here who were in the police--I remember many judges would not stay in Sulu or in Basi-lan. They would hold court in Zamboanga and even the mayors did that. Also, there have been occasions where we have had to move courts or cases and be brought to Manila because we are not so confident about the protection that will be availed of the judges," he noted.

Gordon also cited a judge in Basilan who carries an AK-47 because he was not sure that he was going to get the protection and the Maguindanao Massacre case.

"So we are coming from that direction. We are coming from a direction that will allow the Supreme Court to protect our judges. Under the Constitution, they are in control of the Judiciary and I think they should be allowed to make sure na maipagtatanggol natin iyang mga huwes natin, lalo na iyang mga nasa malalayong lugar. Pag nagkaroon tayo ng marshal service, protective services, siguro may laban na ang mga huwes at sigurado mag-iisip na ng dalawang beses o tatlong beses iyang mga mananakot at papatay sa mga husgado," he said.

Rizal Day: Customs, traditions & celebrations 123YearsAfter

Celebrated every 30th of December, Rizal Day is a national holiday that commemorates the life and heroism of Dr. José Rizal – a man many consider to be one of the greatest heroes of the Philippines.

In the past, most of the official ceremonies on Rizal Day were performed at Rizal Park in the city of Manila. During this official ceremony, flags are flown at half-mast and the President of the Philippines lays a wreath on the shrine dedicated to Jose Rizal.

Recently, it is no longer the case, as ceremonial programs are now being conducted nationwide especially in places where there are monuments of Rizal and government officials attend these programs as guest of honor.

As national holiday, most workers have the day off as a fully paid work day. However, those who do have to work on Rizal Day receive twice their normal day of wages.

On the early morning of the 30th of December 2019, 123 years after Rizal's execution at the exact place, Executive Secretary Salvador Medialdea representing President Rodrigo Duterte led the flag-raising and wreath-laying ceremonies at the 123rd death anniversary of Rizal.

He was joined by Department of National Defense (DND) Secretary Delfin Lorenzana, Secretary Carlito Galvez, Jr. Presidential Adviser on the Peace Process, Manila Mayor Francisco 'Isko Moreno' Domagoso, other government officials and the public in the observance of the event.

Presence of Rizal's descendants, led by beauty queen and first Filipina who won the Miss International title, Ms. Gemma Cruz Araneta made the event more meaningful.

Araneta's paternal great-grandmother was Doña Maria Mercado, the sister of the José Rizal. Her mother is writer and journalist Carmen Guerrero Nakpil, and her maternal uncle is writer and diplomat León María Guerrero III.

She expressed gratitude after seeing that more people came to Luneta this year to remember Rizal's martyrdom.

"Some of our government officials don't seem to give enough importance to this year's ceremony. But we are very happy to see and also my relatives are happy to see the park is full of people admiring Rizal and honoring what he did for the country," she said.

Aside from the event at the Rizal Park in Manila, commemorative program was also held at the Rizal shrines in Calamba, Laguna – which serves as the hero's birth place – as well as in Dapitan City, where he was exiled in 1892. (PIA-NCR/NHCP)

Gatchalian proposes Math and Science High School in provinces to boost nationwide proficiency levels

PASAY CITY--Following the results of a global survey which revealed low Math and Science proficiency scores among Filipino high school students, Senator Win Gatchalian has called anew for the establishment of a public Math and Science High School in every province.

According to the lawmaker, the results of the global Programme for International Student Assessment (PISA) 2018, which assessed 15-year old students' proficiency in Mathematics, Science and Reading Comprehension, underscore the necessity of building schools in the provinces with a curriculum that focuses on Mathematics and the Sciences.

The triennial study revealed that among 79 countries, Filipino students scored second lowest in Science and Mathematics. Filipino high school students scored an average of 353 and 357 in Mathematics and Science, respectively. The focus of the next PISA assessment, which will be in 2021, will be on Mathematical Literacy.

"Ang kakayahan ng ating mga mag-aaral sa Agham at Matematika ay hindi lamang sumalamin sa katayuan ng ating sistema ng edukasyon. Ipinapakita rin nito ang kakulangan sa kahandaan ng ating mga kabataang maging bahagi ng ating mga industriya sa kanilang pagtatapos, lalo na't napakabilis ng pagbabagong dulot ng teknolohiya" said Gatchalian, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Basic Education, Arts and Culture.

Earlier this year, Gatchalian filed Senate Bill 369 or the Equitable Access to Math and Science Education Act. The proposed measure mandates all provinces to have at least one public Math and Science High School within their capital cities. These schools shall implement a six-year integrated junior-senior high school curriculum that focuses on Advanced Science, Mathematics, and Technology subjects under the guidance of both the Department of Education (DepEd) and the Department of Science and Technology (DOST).

Graduates from these schools will be required to enroll in a course of study in Pure and Applied Sciences, Mathematics, Engineering, Technology, or any other field deemed appropriate by the Commission on Higher Education (CHED).

Gatchalian added that these schools will boost student performance in the provinces, noting that in all three areas covered by PISA, students from the rural communities scored lower than those in the urban areas.

"The establishment of a Math and Science High School in every province will also foster greater equity in our education sys-

PNP hiring 17,000 cops in 2020

QUEZON CITY, (PIA)--The Philippine National Police is calling all able-bodied Filipino men and women aged 21 to 30 years old to take on the challenge to serve a noble career in the police service.

The National Police Commission and the Department of Budget and Management have authorized the PNP to fill-up 17,000 vacancies under its Recruitment Program for year 2020. These vacancies comprise the 10,000 annual regular recruitment quota and 7,000 additional quota to replace retired, deceased, dismissed, AWOL, and other separated personnel.

"We want the largest pool of applicants that we can muster from which to select only the best and most qualified candidates that will be recruited into the police service," PNP Officer-in-Charge, Police Lieutenant General Archie Francisco F Gamboa said.

"The annual recruitment program has taken Philippine law enforcement to a higher level by closing the gap in the police-to-population ratio to within ideal limits set by law," he said.

Gamboa said, successful candidates will be appointed to the initial rank of Police Patrolman with a gross monthly salary of P29,668.00 with other mandated allowances and benefits.

PNP Director for Personnel and Records Management, Police Major General Lyndon Cubos advised all prospective applicants to make ready with their clearances, certifications and other documentary requirements to facilitate speedier processing of applications when the recruitment will eventually commence in the coming weeks.

Cubos said applicants must be:

1. A citizen of the Philippines;
2. A person of good moral character;
3. Must have passed the psychiatric/psychological, drug and physical tests to be administered by the PNP;
4. Must possess a formal baccalaureate degree from a recognized learning institution;

"We have adapted this digital information system in recruitment application to level the playing field for all applicants by eliminating opportunities for third party intervention in the rigid selection process," Cubos said.

"Under this system, all applicants become nameless and faceless entries represented only by barcodes while going thru all the mandatory procedures of tests, interviews, and physical and psychological examinations," Cubos explained. (PNP-PIO)

30 rice farmers train on inbred rice seed production

LOS BAÑOS, Laguna (PIA)--About 30 rice farmers from Laguna and Quezon were trained as potential seed growers during the five-day Training on Inbred Rice Seed Production and Certification held recently in this town.

Organized by the Agricultural Training Institute (ATI) Region IV-A, the training and extension arm of the Department of Agriculture, the activity aims to provide the rice farmers with knowledge and skills in the production of inbred seeds.

"Through the lectures from technical experts and hands on exercises such as field inspection and roughing, the participants acquired the knowhow of producing inbred seeds," training project officer Mr. Mervin Vitangcol said.

Based on the data of the Philippine Rice Research Institute (PhilRice), high-quality inbred rice seeds and proper management can increase the yield up to 10% or more. It also assures high-seedling vigor, purity, strict limit on weeds and uniformity of crop stand.

On the other hand, production cost is low as the use of inputs is maximized and nutrients uptake is more efficient. Seed purity adds to the uniformity of crop stand so marketing efficiency improves, and post-harvest losses decrease.

Moreover, the training acquainted the participants on certification process as part of the requirements in the accreditation of seed growers.

Seed certification process includes: 1) accreditation of seed growers; 2) preliminary field inspection; 3) final field inspection; 4) seed selection; 5) receiving of sample seeds; 6) seed testing of seed samples; 7) issuance of results of analysis; and the final process is 8) tagging.

To date, CALABARZON has a total of 33 seed inspectors. Lectures and discussions on Integrated Pest Management (IPM), Integrated Nutrient Management, and Integrated Crop Management (ICM) were also delivered during the training. (Janine L. Cailo, ATI Calabarzon/CPG, PIA-4A)
