Revilla: Flexible working hours will ease PH workers' qualms, save costs from traffic congestion

Sen. Bong Revilla is pushing for the adoption of voluntary work arrangement to help local employers and employees save time and resources, especially in saving the cost of traffic congestion.

He filed a bill (S. No 673), "An Act Amending Article 83 of the Presidential Decree No. 442, otherwise known as the Labor Code of the Philippines," to identify some flexible work arrangements that may be adopted by employers, including compressed work-week where the normal number of working days in a week is reduced but the total number of working hours remains, and flexi-holidays where the employees agree to avail the holidays at some other days.

The veteran lawmaker said that with the advancement in information, communication and technology, the employees can work outside the premises of the workplace and sustain working beyond eight (8) hours without sacrificing its quality.

He also pointed out that kind of arrangement is recognized by DOLE through Department Advisory No. 2, "Guidelines on the Doption of Flexible

Sen. Bong Revilla

Work Arrangements," and its subsequent Department Advisory No. 4, Series of 2010, "Guidelines on the Implementatuon of Flexible Work Arrangements and the Exemption From the Night-work Prohibition for Women Employees in the Business Process Outsourcing."

Bong Revilla believes that flexible work schedule will allow employees to achieve work life balance which will make them more energized, satisfied, fulfilled and productive.

Calabarzon SCMDA sets strategic actions for 2020

C a l a b a r z o n---(PIA) – The Sectoral Committee on Macroeconomy and Development Administration (SCMDA) of the Calabarzon Regional Development Council is pushing for the intensified implementation of strategic actions on justice, peace, and governance in support to the achievement of goals embodied in the Calabarzon's five-year Regional Development Plan.

During the committee's fourth quarter meeting held on November 8, member agencies of the SCMDA have agreed to implement banner activities for 2020 that will pursue swift and fair administration of justice, ensure people-centered governance, and establish just and lasting peace.

The activities identified by the committee include the establishment of a regional justice hub or zone that would facilitate a practical approach in administering justice in the region.

According to the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) Region 4A, the justice hub is expected to improve access for judicial process as it would harmonize justice procedures and systems. It added that the establishment of the regional justice hub would also better facilitate the issues and concerns of the five pillars of the justice system namely law enforcement, prosecution, the courts, corrections, and the community.

Aside from the establishment of the justice hub, the SCMDA is also set to intensify the conduct

DOH AND UNICEF URGE LOCAL GOVERNMENT UNITS TO PRIORITIZE SANITATION

MANILA--The Department of Health (DOH) launched the Philippine Approach to Sustainable Sanitation (PhATSS) policy in Baseco, Tondo, Manila on the occasion of World Toilet Day (WTD) celebration.

The policy cites new sanitation targets for all barangays across Philippines to achieve Zero Open Defecation (ZOD) status by 2025. Currently only 11 per cent of barangays (only 4625 out of a total 42,045) are certified ZOD, where people have abandoned the practice of open defecation.

According to the 2017 Philippine National Demographic and Health Survey, 4.5 percent of Filipinos do not yet have toilets and tend to practice open defecation, while another 24 percent use unimproved sanitation facilities. This amounts to an estimated 28 million Filipinos whose poor sanitation practices pose a serious threats to the population in terms of health, nutrition, protection, education, environment, and productivity.

tioners from General Emilio Aguinaldo Memorial Hospital once again visited the City of Imus in Barangay Toclong II-A last November 16, 2019 to provide healthcare services to the locals.

Two hundred fifty eight (258) residents were given medical consultation and 17 citizens had their tooth extracted by these volunteers assisted by trained personnel from the Office of the Provincial Governor-Extension.

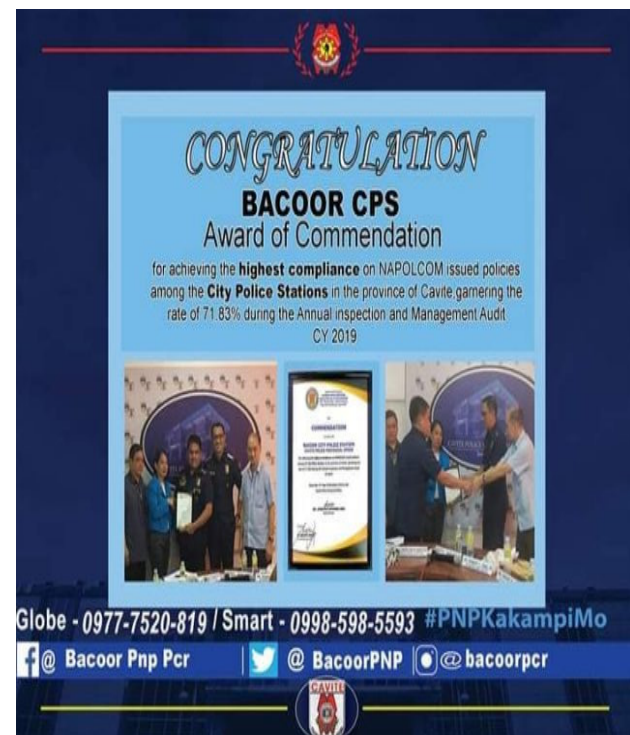

The Barangay Council led by Punong Barangay Kenneth S. Sañez, Jr. was very grateful to the medical mission team for visiting their barangay and providing the health care needs of their people.

SOURCEPROVINCIAL INFORMATION AND COMMUNITY AFFAIRS DEPARTMENT

During the event, Dr. Francisco T. Duque, III, Department of Health (DOH) Secretary highlighted that using a toilet as well as the practice of handwashing with soap after using the toilet and before eating helps prevent the transmission of polio, among other diseases. "Currently DOH is conducting a mass vaccination campaign either through door-to-door activities or at the respective health centers, regardless of vaccination status. This means that even if children have already been vaccinated, additional doses can help them get fully protected. Aside from vaccination, DOH is reminding the public to practice good hygiene and urging the Local Government Units (LGUs) through the aid of DOH Centers for Health Development (CHDs) to intensify their Zero Open Defecation Program," said Sec. Duque. Using the PhATSS policy, LGUs are guided on how to track the sanitation situation of each community and take supportive action to ensure that no one is left behind without access to a sanitary toilet. While policies and standards are set by DOH at the national level, the LGUs are at the forefront of implementing sanitation programs. Thus, the task to make each barangay in the country ZOD lies in their hands.

"We encourage all local government units to prioritize sanitation. The effect of proper sanitation on health, nutrition, education, and security of Filipino children and women is paramount. TURN TO PAGE 5 of outreach activities and government caravans next year targeting to make government services accessible to communities and increase public awareness on government's programs, projects, and services.

With the intensified implementation of the Executive Order No. 70 or the Whole-of-Nation approach, the caravans and outreach activities according to NEDA 4A, are seen to contribute to President Duterte's priority agenda to end local communist armed conflict.

Recognizing the vital need to ensure people-centered, clean, and efficient governance, the SCMDA also agreed to include capacity development programs for member agencies of the RDC.

The NEDA 4A said the capacity development program is vital to improve the services being provided by the member agencies of the council.

"The conduct of capacity development program for RDC members is vital to build and enhance the capability of members to effectively and efficiently implement development plans, programs and activities of the government," it said.

The trainings which are yet to be determined by the committee will also be expanded to local level to include local government units personnel in view of the expected increase in the Internal Revenue Allotment or IRA starting next year.

NEDA 4A said the implementation of the SCMDA's banner activities is in support towards achieving the Ambisyon Natin 2040 or the long-term vision of a 'Matatag, Maginhawa, at Panatag na Buhay Para sa Lahat.' (PIA4A/NEDA4A)

FEATURE: TAGAYTAY CITY PRIDE

Barangay Kayganda: San Jose's secret to achieving zero waste

By: Fredmoore S. Cavan

San Jose, a small barangay located in Tagaytay City, takes pride in its outstanding environmental practices and programs.

Not only the continued efforts of the barangay officials led to the huge success of its environmental initiatives but also the full support and active participation given by the members of the community take it to a different level.

With the assistance of the City Government of Tagaytay, Barangay San Jose led by Barangay Chairman Jojit Desingano has successfully implemented a unique environmental program called 'Barangay Kayganda' which integrates the Republic Act 9003 or the Ecological Solid Waste Management Act of 2000.

The program which was coined from a slogan "Kapaligiran 'wag Yurakan, Gamit at Nabubulok na Bagay Dapat sa Ayos at Hiwalay na Lagayan Ilagay" took off from their commitment to protect the environment through educating residents on the proper ways of segregating waste.

Desingano narrates that the improper dumping of garbage due to lack of awareness pushed him and his barangay's solid waste management team to implement the Barangay Kayganda program in 2014.

He said the garbage off the streets was a common sight back then. "Na challenge kami that time kasi medyo madami talagang basura sa aming community. We are challenged kung paano kami makakalapat sa tao at kung paano nila mauunawan ang implementation ng RA 9003."

"So sa pamamagitan ng Barangay Kayganda program, mas maging maingat ang mga residente ng tao ano ba yung segregasyon, ano ba ang gagawin

Barangay San Jose boasts of a waste processing and material recovery facilities established through the 'eco-bayanihan' of barangay officials and residents.

Initially, they reached out to residents through the 'eco-dukasyon' program which gives out copies of pamphlets containing information on proper solid waste management.

Desingano said they also conducted waste analysis for a week to determine the type of garbage disposed from the households. The results, he said, were used as the basis for waste segregation policies they have implemented under the program.

He recalls that the first year of implementation of the Barangay Kayganda was not an easy start due to resistance of some of its residents.

Desingano shares that the first eight months has been a grueling fight and they came to a point of giving up as some, especially the old ones, had reservations about the program, saying that many thought the garbage problem was impossible to solve.

But nothing could stop them from encouraging the community to take part in the fight against improper waste segregation. He shared that they would even go to each household to personally segregate and collect the garbage for them.

"Kapag naramdaman ng tao sa simpleng paghakot ng basura nila at kung tayo mismong mga barangay official ang mangunguna sa pagsegregate ng ating mga basura, definitely sununod sila," shared Desingano.

Desingano told that he always keep on telling the residents during barangay assemblies that the proper waste segregation could not only benefit the environment but will also create ripple effects to their everyday life, and that the garbage problem is a shared responsibility of the barangay and the community.

"Sa basura pag maayos, definitely lahat ng aspeto magiging maayos. Lahat ng aspeto ng pamumuhay magiging maayos basta't maayos ang iyong sanitasyon."

And the program shed light in 2015. After they have earned the support of the community, the barangay reaped remarkable results and more environmental initiatives eventually followed.

In 2018, Barangay San Jose was recognized by the Department of Environment and Natural Resources Region 4A through its Environmental Management Bureau for championing initiatives and outstanding commitment in implementing the solid waste management program.

No segregation, no collection policy

As the members of the community have been made aware of what garbage they could dispose and keep, there's no excuse for them not to abide the 'no segregation, no collection policy' implemented by Desingano.

According to Executive Order No. 2 issued by Desingano in 2016, all biodegradable wastes to be collected must be properly segregated at source and all receptacles used such as sacks or plastic bags should be tied tightly upon collection to prevent entry of insects and avoid spillage.

All non-biodegradable wastes, meanwhile, should be segregated into recyclables or re-usable and residuals and must be cleaned before placing in separate bags, securely fastened, and stored until the scheduled collection.

All households including commercial establishments follow the segregation policy and separate waste into three types: biodegradable, recyclable, and residual which has a corresponding collection schedule. Some puroks or subdivisions even have their own compost pits where households could put their biodegradable wastes.

To monitor compliance of residents to the environmental policy, each household was provided with an 'eco-book' which logs their garbage collection. Giving some sort of inspiration and motivation to residents, the barangay also implemented an incentive program under the Barangay Kayganda. For every properly segregated waste and recyclable material, a resident may earn eco-points which they can use to get equivalent grocery items or school supplies in the eco-store of the barangay. A resident may also get a kilo of rice in exchange of a jar of cigarette butts.

Recyclable materials collected were brought to the material recovery facility of the barangay. These materials were either processed in the waste processing facility or sold to their partner junkshop. Desingano said they have partnered with a junkshop that would buy other collected recyclable materials such as plastic bottles, empty cans, and used cartons. The earnings, according to Desingano, are used to acquire grocery items for the eco-store and as supplemental budgets for acquiring garbage mini trucks.

San Jose boasts for being the only barangay in Tagaytay City which has their own waste processing and material recovery facilities which greatly helped them in sustaining their waste segregation efforts. The recyclable materials are also being used to generate income for the barangay and livelihood opportunities for some residents. In San Jose, plastic garbage such as plastic wrappers and bottles are recovered, processed into their waste processing facility and turned into decorative items, bags, and other eco-friendly products. What inspired residents even more is that barangay also provide assistance to people wanting livelihood opportunities through the startup capital called 'eco-puhunan' and 'eco-livelihood', all under the Barangay Kayganda program. Youth involvement in solid waste management Believing that the youth plays a significant role in maintaining a clean and green environment, the barangay also brings the Barangay Kayganda program down to the school level. Designated trash bins and signs of proper garbage segregation are evident that strict segregation of waste is practiced in San Jose Elementary School. In pursuit of its efforts in intensifying the solid waste management program, the barangay also holds a one-of-a-kind annual environmental event called "Basura-lympics" composed of activities that seek to strengthen the awareness of students on the proper segregation of waste, RA 9003, and other environmental practices. Each student also has their own eco-book where they can log their eco-points earned from every recyclable material, plastic, or paper that they would collect. These eco-points, meanwhile could be used to acquire equivalent school supplies from the school's eco-store. Yolita Paras, school principal lauded the barangay initiative saying that this has inspired, motivated, and taught students to care for the environment at a young age.

"Alam naman nila na ang ating environment ay parang nagiging worse na rin so bilang mga bata sa kanila dapat ito magsimula, na dapat nila itong pangalagaan." In addition to policies, the barangay also initiated regular collective cleanups and community garden competition to sustainably encourage people's participation. Desingano said every one's involvement has been the key to the successful implementation of the Barangay Kayganda program. He underscores that the success they were able to achieve was not only theirs alone but the product of collaborative efforts and active participation of the residents of the barangay. "Sa success ng programa na iimplement mo kailangan kabahagi kabalikat yung mga members ng community. Sa amin, mula bata hanggang matanda, mga bata, mga kababaihan they are very active at talagang support-ive sa aming ipinatupad na solid waste management program." The solid waste management story of San Jose is a testament that the political will, firm commitment, and the active participation of empowered people play a huge part in achieving the country's zero waste goal. ## DOH AND UNICEF...from p2

Prioritizing sanitation is not a choice, but an imperative! It's about time to look at addressing the sanitation needs of people in urban slums, in remote and geographically isolated areas, and in indigenous communities for a healthier, more progressive Philippines, and to ensure that no one is left behind" said UNICEF Deputy Representative Julia Rees. UNICEF provides technical assistance to DOH in scaling up sanitation programs. The World Toilet Day event, with the theme "Toilets for All: Leaving No One Behind", aims to advocate the use of toilets and stopping the dangerous practice of open defecation. Unhygienic sanitation contributes to stunting and malnutrition, as repeated diarrheal and other infections in the gut affect children's capacity to absorb the nutrients from the food they eat. The act of defecating in open spaces such as fields and bodies of water, also put children and women at risk of sexual harassment and abuse. For further information, please contact:
